Text “Not only was the public not allowed in the Gallery to observe, but most members of Congress also were not even allowed on the floor to participate. Only 11 members on each side were allowed on the floor. If there could only be 11 members from each side on the floor at any one time, then they could not have had a quorum and the counting of the votes could not be official.” Our sources also say the U.S. Special Forces sent a team that was specifically trying to find Congressmen but failed. Perhaps this group was set up.
